

I believe that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's telephone Privacy law protections. Since these protections were enacted there has been zero telephone solicitation of any kind which is a welcome relief. I used to receive as many as 10 calls per day now that activity is non-existent, a clear example of how effective this law in Indiana works well.